

Michael J. Dymant
Managing Director & CEO

NEXA Capital Partners, LLC

Mr. Dymant leads NEXA Capital Partners, a corporate finance advisory firm with a focus on Value-Based Management, where people, processes, and systems are aligned to continuously increase enterprise value and achieve corporate finance objectives. A highly experienced aerospace and defense industry consultant and trusted financial advisor to top management, he has over 30 years experience with both commercial and government projects. Within all client assignments, he assumes client-handling responsibility, working with senior management to design programs having measurable and sustained impact upon their value-creation objectives.

Prior to joining NEXA Mr. Dymant was Senior Managing Director with PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP, responsible for key aerospace and defense industry clients. He was also an Officer and Vice President of the Transportation Practice of A.T. Kearney, Inc. From 1996 to 2002 he served in the business consulting unit of Arthur Andersen LLP, where he was the managing partner of its global Aviation Industry Practice. In the early 1990's he was a Principal with Booz Allen & Hamilton, Inc. and led its Washington DC based Civil Aviation Practice, a unit of the worldwide technology business.

He speaks widely on aerospace matters, and his opinion is regularly sought by the media. He has been quoted in Aviation Week, the Wall Street Journal, the International Herald Tribune, the Financial Times and the Los Angeles Times, for example. He contributes to stories in Forbes, Wired Magazine and Business Week, and is a guest on CNN, MSNBC, CBS and ABC where he regularly offers insights on U.S. transportation and aviation industry matters. He holds a Master of Science in Aeronautics and Astronautics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
